PRECIOUS STONES.

The Characteristics by Which Jewelers Can Recognize Diamonds Handled by Them.

A New York reporter interviewed Mr. Andrews, of Tiffany's. "How are you to identify unset diamonds?" the reporter asked. "Here, now, is a diamond," he said, holding up a flashing yellow crystal as big as a pigeon's egg; "that is one of the remarkable diamonds of the world, and could be identified anywhere. It weighs 125 carats, and is worth $30,000. While yellow diamonds are plentiful, yet there are few with a clear, decided tint like this; and it is peculiar in its cutting, from the fact that it has two rows of facets from the girdle, or largest circumference of the stone, to the table, as the flat top of the stone is called. In the ordinary style of cutting a brilliant there is only one row of facets between girdle and table. Here is a diamond," picking up a brilliant clear as a drop of dew and flashing with colors like a rainbow, "that weighs only two and one half carats, and it is yet worth $1,500, from the fact that it is of the purest water."

A diamond as notable as this we can positively identify from its characteristics. Here is another," picking up a yellow stone, "that weighs nearly as much, two and three-fourths carats, and is yet worth only $275, because of its color. Yellow diamonds are hard to identify by appearance, because they are so plentiful. Diamonds come of all colors, pink, blue and brown being rare and worth much more than yellow. The pure white, free from stain or flaw, is the most valuable of all. Odd colors are so rare that they afford a ready means of identification. Here is a black diamond," he said, holding up a large brilliant that oddly combined perfect transparency with a blackish tint; "this is one of the largest and best black diamonds in the world. It weighs five carats, and is worth $2,500. Now, here," picking up a beautiful diamond of a clear pink hue, "is a curiosity, that we could readily identify anywhere. It weighs eight carats, less a sixteenth, and is worth $5,000. The color is a rare one, and it is exquisitely pure. Here is another extraordinary diamond."

He showed a large pearl-shaped stone of a cinnamon color. "That is an East Indian gem, and is very old. Although it weighs seventeen carats it is not worth as much as the smaller pink brilliant, on account of its color. Its value is $4,000. Such marked stones as those I have shown you we could positively identify by their characteristics. But there would be no means of identifying such stones as these," he said, as he poured a handful of small diamonds on the table. They were nearly all off color, and of small size.

"How, then, do you avoid mistakes and protect yourself against fraudulent claims when you take diamonds to set?"

"In the first place, we will have nothing to do with paste, no matter what price might be offered us to set it. Nobody in the store is allowed to wear a paste gem, and if by mistake a paste brilliant is taken in at the repair counter it is immediately sent back to the owner. That rarely happens. Some time ago, when we refused to reset a stone on the ground that it was paste, the owner was greatly surprised to hear that it was not genuine. The lady investigated the matter, and found that a dishonest servant had removed the diamond and substituted a paste gem. She had never known the difference, although an expert does not hesitate a moment in pronouncing upon the genuineness of a stone."

"When a diamond is brought to us," Mr. Andrews went on, "it goes immediately into the hands of an expert who gives it microscopic scrutiny. It is weighed, any chip or flaw is noted, and all these facts are recorded together with a little diagram indicating the location of the defects. Then it goes into the workman's hands. This enables us to be certain that we are returning exactly the same diamond that we take in. No one diamond in a thousand is free from flaws, so that there are always identifying characteristics. People are frequently surprised to find their diamonds have defects, but it is often the case that the cutter will leave in a flaw that can be covered by the setting, as very frequently the cutting out of a defect would lose a half a carat or more of weight."

"Will diamonds chip off in wearing?"

"Very rarely. You may lay a diamond on an anvil and strike it with a hammer and it will not break. At the same time a diamond has a grain, and a blow that happens to strike it along the line of cleavage may clip it. Most of the defects in stones are natural. Perfect pearls are even rarer than perfect diamonds. I recollect that a dealer once brought to us a collection of pearls valued at $250,000, and there was only one absolutely perfect one in the lot. The rarity of perfect pearls makes us consider this one of our most extraordinary pieces of jewelry."

He showed a pearl necklace, the pearls ranging in size from peas to filberts. They were all perfectly round, and some were iridescent. "Those we call Orients," he said, "and they are extremely rare. The necklace is worth $35,000."

"GIRLS, don't think a fellow is a gentleman because he gives you a polite bow. Bowers are always knaves, so a eucher player informs us."

A CANADA farmer discovered a pit containing 500 skulls. Must have been the site of some ancient theater to have so many dead heads in the pit.

"You seem sad and dejected to-night, Claude, dear." "Yes, darling; men of my emotional nature are easily affected by the smiles or frowns of fortune." His washerwoman had discharged him.

He promised to cleave to her, and when they went to the theater and he came back between the acts with a piece of cork in his whiskers she knew from the fragrance he exhaled that he had clove.

An editor in Georgia says: "Gold is found in thirty-six counties in this State, silver in three, copper in thirteen, iron in forty-three, diamonds in twenty-six and whisky in all of them; and the last gets away with all the rest."

THE professor who recently said, in warmly recommending a certain book, "If you can't carry it in your head you can in your pocket," echoed the sentiments of many men in the school who have "cribbed" through their examinations.

A boy came home from school much excited, and told his father that he believed all human beings were descended from apes, which made the old man so mad that he replied, angrily: "That may be the case with you, but it ain't with me, I can tell you that, now."

DAILY EVENING BULLETIN.

SATURDAY EVENING, JAN. 14, 1882.

THERE is evidence among democratic members of the Ohio House of a general preference for Hancock to Pendleton for Presidential nomination in 1884.

A BILL has been introduced in the Ohio Senate to regulate freight and passenger charges on railroads in the State, and to prevent discriminations and extortions.

At the Appellate Convention at Frankfort on the first ballot Mason county cast three votes for Henry, one for Hewitt, two for Desha, four for Poage and one for Revill.

Gen. Browne, of Indiana, introduced a bill in the National House, Thursday, that will interest tradespeople generally. It provides for the issue of fractional currency to the amount of ten millions in denominations of 5, 10, 25 and 50 cents, exchangeable for gold, silver and silver certificates, bank notes or greenbacks, in amounts of $100 or any multiple thereof.

WHEN Commonwealth's Attorney Curran notified Judge Cole that for satisfactory reasons he could not prosecute the indictment now pending in the Circuit Court against Thomas P. Anderson for manslaughter, it was certainly the duty of Judge Cole to have the Maysville Republican name the attorney who should perform Mr. Curran's duties. His failure to do so was very high evidence of his lending himself to some scheme in Anderson's interest, but we dare say the Judge forgot it.

The Problem Unsolved.

Dr. D. G. Brinton, of New York, in a late number of the American Antiquarian, candidly admits that "the question, Who were the Mound Builders? is one that still remains open in American archaeology." Among the more recent expressions of opinion he quotes Prof. John T. Short (1880) who thinks that one or two thousand years may have elapsed since the Mound Builders deserted the Ohio Valley, and probably eight hundred since they retired finally from the Gulf Coast. Dr. J. W. Foster, in his Prehistoric Races, says that "a broad chasm is to be spanned before we can link the Mound Builders to the North American Indians. They were essentially different in their form of government, their habits, and their daily pursuits." Morgan, and other ethnologists, connect the Mound Builders in origin with the Pueblo, or Village, Indians of the far West. Dr. Wilson, of Toronto, an able investigator and a high authority, indicates peculiarities in the Mound Builder of which no suggestion can be found in succeeding races. These are the opinions of careful, exact, philosophical enquirers. For a writer on popular science to assert, in direct contradiction of these views, that "every known trait of the Mound Builder was possessed by the Indian," is not only unscientific, but absurd. That the Indian and the Mound Builder were remotely of the same origin is quite possible, but there seems to be every reason to believe that they were ethnologically distinct races at the time that the Mound Builder was dispossessed of his empire in the Mississippi Valley and the ruder Indian fell heir to his arts. The conquering Latin inherited the arts of the Greek, and the Latin in turn was subjugated by the barbarians of the North who in time were themselves lifted to the highest plane of civilization by the arts of Greece and Rome. These were certainly distinct races, and yet linguistic science has demonstrated that an Aryan progenitor stood back of them all.

SATURDAY EVENING, JAN. 14, 1882.

ATTENTION! every citizen,
An order has been sent
That you will all, without delay,
Prepare to "arms present."
Let all the men and women too.
And all the little tads,
Prompt obey this order of,
Our honored City Dads.

THE store of P. B Powers & Co., at Augusta was robbed on Thursday while the clerk was at supper. The thief got the contents of the money drawer only.

THE extensive flour mills of W. W. Manker & Co., at West Liberty, Ky., were burned a few days ago. The mills destroyed were a flooring and planing mill, saw mill, four and grist mill, which will entail a loss of not less than $25,000, and will seriously effect a large part of the mountain country. There was no insurance. The mills are to be rebuilt immediately and an extensive furniture factory added.

THERE will be a mass temperance meeting held at the Presbyterian church tomorrow afternoon at fifteen minutes after three o'clock, to which the public is most cordially invited. The Rev. A. M. Collins, the eloquent and popular state lecturer and organizer for the grand division of Sons of Temperance of Ohio will address the meeting. Mr. Collins has been an effective worker in the temperance field and will no doubt most pleasantly entertain his hearers.

A SPECIAL despatch to the BULLETIN received late yesterday afternoon, stated that the grand jury in session at Catlettsburg had reported true bills against Craft, Neal and Ellis, and that their trial would begin immediately. It is now said that prisoners have failed to show their whereabouts on the morning the murders were discovered; in fact, could not, satisfactorily, give any account of themselves between midnight and five o'clock that morning. The wives of Ellis and Neal do not know where they were, but testified that between those hours their husbands were not at home. The boy whom Craft claims slept with him that night repudiates the statement, and swears that he knows nothing about Craft's movements between the periods mentioned. This looks bad for all three of the accused, and the probabilities are they will fail to clear up this very material question.

The following despatch was received this morning, by Judge Wall:

CATLETTSBURG, Ky., Jan. 14, 8:15, a. m.
Judge Wall: Thomas Brinly, James Hasson, Jr., David Kinney and Patrick Parks, are needed as witnesses. If subpoena, guard, keep safe and return under guard, will they be allowed to come, answer, Geo. M. Brown.

Circuit Judge.

The reply sent was as follows:

MAYSVILLE, KY., Jan. 14, 1882.
Hon. Geo. M. Brown: You can have the parties named and anything else you desire.

GARRETTS. WALL,
County Judge.

The guard to take the above named witnesses to Ashland is expected to reach here to-night.

AN ANTI-SLAVERY RO

LATEST FROM CATLETTSBURG.

Six Indictments Found Against the Murderers by the Grand Jury. The Trials to Take Place Next Week.

Special to the DAILY BULLETIN.

CATLETTSBURG, Ky., January 14th, 1882. After a session of nearly five days the grand jury of Boyd county, at half-past one o'clock yesterday returned six indictments against the Ashland murderers. Neal and Craft are indicted jointly for the murder of each victim, and Ellis has been indicted for aiding and abetting the murderers of Miss Gibbons, Miss Thomas and the crippled boy. William Neal will be tried under the indictments on Monday, Ellis Craft on Tuesday and George Ellis on Friday. Neal will be defended at his trial by Thomas R. Brown, of Cattlettsburg, Craft by R. C. Burns, of the same place and Ellis by D. K. Weis, of Ashland. A great deal of interest seems to be manifested in the matter by the citizens of Ashland, and this city, but no disposition is apparent to interfere with the prisoners while their case is undergoing investigation in the court. A strong guard is however, on duty continually, and no risk whatever is taken.

Circuit Court.

FOURTH DAY.

John Combois was found guilty of selling liquor to a minor and fined $50 and costs.

Lewis Roser was fined $50 and costs for same offense.

The case of the Commonwealth vs. Thomas P. Anderson, was continued until Monday at nine o'clock.

Death of D. E. Roberts.

Mr. D. E. Roberts, one of our most conspicuous citizens and men of business died this morning at his home in this city after a short illness. Mr. Roberts was at the time of his death, one of the proprietors of the Limstone Flour Mills and had been connected with the milling business all his life. He was born August 4th, 1812, at Pompherstone Mills, Middle Calder Parish, County of Edinburg, Scotland. At the age of maturity he left his native land and came to America. He brought with him nothing but his native Scotch energy and thrift, a consciousness of capacity in his profession and a determination to succeed in life. He settled upon his arrival in 1833 at Brooklyn, N. Y., and continued in the milling business there for ten years. He went from Brooklyn to the Pacific Coast. In 1859 he first settled in Maysville and purchased the old mill site of the late Wm. Stillwell in East Maysville. He conducted the business for one year when the firm of Bierley, Gambrel & Co., bought a half interest which they afterward parted with and Mr. D. Keefer came into the firm. The business was conducted in the name of D. E. Roberts & Co., until 1876, when Mr. Keefer retired and Mr. Roberts became the sole owner of the mills. Subsequently the present firm was formed.

Mr. Roberts was a modest, quiet, unobtrusive man. His mind was both reflective and projective, but more practical than speculative. His success in business was uniform and he had in the course of a long period met with few reverses and none that were serious. He died possessed of an ample fortune and was considered one of the solid men of this city. For many years he had been a leading member of the Methodist Episcopal church and was universally esteemed as a true Christian gentleman and a most useful and worthy citizen.

ADJACENT COUNTIES.

FLEMING COUNTY.

The body of a female child with its skull crushed, was found recently on the farm of Riley Stacey near Flemingsburg. It was discovered by a dog.

A party composed of Douglas P. Ort, S. M. Poynz and Henry Chenoweth, of Maysville, and Thomas James, of Louisiana, spent a couple of days in the county last week hunting. They killed about a hundred rabbits and a number of birds.

BRACKEN COUNTY.

Pink-eye has appeared at several places in this county.

The following marriage licenses have been issued since our last report: Eddie McMahan to W. O. Blackerby; Elizabeth Pollard to John P. Arnold; Alice Adams to Amos Reeves, Jr.; Edna Routt to John Coleman; Mary F. Boothe to W. H. Thackston; Mary Moore to Wm. Johnson.

Col. R. S. Chevis, Grand Worthy Counselor of the I. O. G. T., of Kentucky, will deliver free temperance lectures in this county, at the following places, during this month: Augusta, 17th; Pickering's school house, 18th; Augusta 19th; Fairview, 20th; Sharon, 21st; Milford, 22nd. Lecture to begin at seven o'clock p. m. each evening.

LEWIS COUNTY.

Courier: It is thought no appointment of jailer will be made in place of jailer Hisey, deceased, but that his family will be permitted to retain charge until the vacancy is filled at the August election.

Referring to the suggestion of Captain Bruce Redden for the county clerkship, the Courier says: We do not know that Mr. Redden is a candidate, but he would be a popular one, and, if nominated, would not only poll his party vote but draw largely from the opposition by reason of his peculiar fitness and his sociable and affable qualities.

NICHOLAS COUNTY.

Theodore Campbell has been sent to the insane asylum at Lexington.

R. M. Parks has resigned as station agent for the K. C. R. R. at Carlisle.

Wm. Linn, a freight conductor on the main line of the Kentucky Central, got his left hand very badly mashed while coupling cars at Paris.

No Progress in Education.

In picking up a bundle of school books the other day, and carelessly glancing through them, we were struck with the almost Pagan darkness that seems to envelop education. Journalism, photography, telegraphy and the electric arts—everything, in fact, has made the most wonderful progress during the past fifteen or twenty years, education, or the study of the s, is about the same old succotash that it always was. We see that there are still two grand divisions of the earth, and they are composed of land and water. That was the case twenty years ago. We turn over a few pages and find the following questions:

"Where are the Mountains of the Moon?"

"Where are the Himalayas!"

"Between what two bodies of water are the Philippine Islands situated?"

"State where the river Dneiper rises, what course it runs, and into what body of water it empties."

Well, it has been many years since we left the dear old school room, and our teachers who were so kind, and we are positive that at that time we knew where the Moon Mountains were, the Hymalayas, the Phillipine Islands and the Dneiper River, but we can place our hand upon our heart to-day and say truthfully that we do not know where one of them are, and we don't believe we have heard one of them mentioned in the last fifteen years. Still, it must be remembered that we are in the newspaper business. If we were dealing in groceries it wou'd prob'ly be different, and we should use the Moon Mountains every day in our business. Customers would expect it, and while they would appear to be looking at the chee-e to see if there were any skippers before buying a wedge of it, they wou'd in rea ity be making up their mind whether we knew where the Phillipine Islands were, and the general course of the Dneiper.

Some customers are very particular. People have expressed astonishment at the success of some of the leading dry goods merchants of Milwaukee, and have attributed it to the merchants' knowing how to buy goods cheap down east and sell them for less than other merchants. This shows how ignorance is stalking through the land. If one could peek over the shoulder of the most successful merchants, when they are burning the midnight oil and clawing into their hair with both hands, they would be found poring over a geography, trying to find some little river in Asia Minor.

Then there is algebra and cube and square root. Only last week we wrote an editorial and did not know really whether it ought to be published or not. All at once the words of our teacher came to us—"Prove it; if it is correct it can be proved." We threw a radical over it, raised it to the fourth power, extracted the cube root, and having x and y given to us, we easily found the unknown quantity z, and the thing was a bird.

One of the most successful grocers in Milwaukee, a man who has accumulated a handsome fortune from a very small beginning, told us only the other day that he owed all his success to the use of algebra and a few theorems in geometry when picking a mackerel out of the kit with the hook and slapping it against the side of the barrel to get the brine off, and to buying just as close as he could for cash. Where would that man be to-day if he had only learned to add and multiply fractions, and had stopped there, and had bought his goods on time, with ten per cent. added. Teachers have a great duty to perform.—Peck's Sun.

The language applied to gems is purely fanciful, as is that of flowers. It is an old nonsense that has come down from the olden time, and the sentiment ascribed to precious stones is as old as the tenth century, and for centuries was the controlling feature in making gifts of gems. The following is the imagined sentiment: Garnet, constancy and fidelity; Amethyst, sincerity; Bloodstone, courage and presence of mind; Diamond, innocence; Emerald, success in love; Agate, health and long life; Cornealian, contented mind; Sardonyx, conjugal felicity; Chrysolyte, antidote against madness; Opal, hope; Topaz, fidelity; Turquoise, prosperity; Pearl, purity.

THE SUN.

NEW YORK 1882.

The Sun for 1882 will make its debut in an era revolution under the present management, as it ways, for all, big and little, mean and gracious, intended and unhappy, Republican and Democratic depraved and virtuous, tellgentian obtuse. The Sun's light is for mankind and womankind of every sort, but its genial warmth is for the good, while it pours hot discomfort on the blistering backs of the persons stolidly wicked.

The Sun of 1882 was a newspaper of a new kind. It discarded many of the forms, and a multitude of the superfluous words and phrase of much journalism. It undertook to report in a fresh, succinct, unconventional way all the news of the world, omitting no event of human interest, and commenting upon affairs with the fearlessness of absolute independence. The success of this experiment was the success of the Sun.

It effected a permanent change in the style of American newspapers. Every important journal established in this country in the dozen years past has been modelled after the Sun. Every important journal already existing has been模仿ed and bettered by the force of the Sun's example.

The Sun of 1882 will be the same outspoken, truth-telling and interesting newspaper.

By a liberal use of the means which an abundant prosperity affords, we shall make it better than ever before.

We shall print all the news, putting it into readable shape, and measuring its importance, not by the traditional stock, but by its real interest to the people. Distance from Printing House Square is not the first consideration with the Sun. Whenever anything happens worth reporting we get the particulars, whether it has pens in Brooklyn or in Foch's.

In politics we have decided opinions and are accustomed express them in language that can be understood. We say what we think about men and events. That habit is the only secret of the Sun's political course.

The Weekly Sun gathers into eight pages the best matter of the seven daily issues. An Agricultural Department of the unequalled merit, full market reports and a liberal proportion of literary, scientific and domestic intelligence complete the Weekly Sun, and make it the best newspaper for the farmer's household that was ever printed.

Who does not know and read and like the Sunday Sun, each number of which is a God-concise of interesting literature, with the poetry of the day, prose every line worth reading, news, humor—matter enough to fill a good sized book, and infinitely more varied and interesting than any book, big or little?

It is our idea of what a newspaper should be, please you, send for the Sun.

Our terms are as follows. For the daily Sun, a four-page sheet of twenty-eight columns, the price by mail is 55 cents a month, or $6.50 a year, or including the Sunday paper, an eight-page sheet of fifty-six columns, the price is 65 cents per month, or $7.50 a year, postage paid.

The Sunday edition of the Sun is also furnished separately at $1.20 a year, postage paid.

The price of the Weekly Sun, eight pages, fifty-six columns, is $1 a year, postage paid. For clubs of ten sending $10 we will send an extra copy free.
